WESTERN POLITICAL THINKERS

Course Objective:

The purpose of this module is to introduce to the students some classical political thinkers from the West who shaped the ideas and key concepts of political Science in the Anglo-American tradition. Developing a 'just society' and a 'just state' has been a perennial question for all civilizations. But the answers are not alike. They are different across civilizations and times. This course examines the ideas of some of the prominent classical political thinkers beginning from Plato and ending with Mill whose response to political questions vividly influenced political thinking. The seeds of the conceptual themes which seem to be so enriched today also found expressions in older times with different accentuation and nodes. The course seeks to explore their ideas and examine them critically.

Learning Outcomes:

- a. The students will know the key ideas of all the political philosophers given in the course.
- b. They will be able to explain the dimensions of the ideal state according to Plato and how was it linked to his scheme of education and theory of justice.
- c. They will be able to understand the philosophy of Aristotle relating to Revolution, Property and Classification of Government.
- d. They will be able to make a distinction among Hobbes, Locke, and Rousseau on the state of nature, the law of nature, nature and form of contract and the emergence of state from the contract.
- e. They will be able to discern the meaning of Liberty and Democracy in the philosophy of Mill.
- g. Students would understand the key ideas in Marxism.

Unit I

- a. Plato : Ideal State, Justice and Education

Unit II

- b. Aristotle : Revolution, Property and Classification of Government

Unit III

- c. Hobbes : Sovereignty and Individualism
- d. Locke : Social Contract, Property and Natural Rights

Course Title : SEMINAR AND GROUP DISCUSSION

FULL MARKS: 100

Course Description: This seminar-based course is designed to foster critical thinking, research skills, and effective communication through student-led presentations and discussions. Students will explore key topics, engage in collaborative learning, and develop expertise in their chosen subject area.

Course Objectives:

1. Develop critical thinking skills through in-depth analysis and discussion of complex topics.
2. Enhance research abilities by conducting independent research and synthesizing information from various sources.
3. Improve oral communication skills through structured presentations and interactive discussions.
4. Foster collaborative learning and teamwork through peer feedback and group activities.
5. Cultivate a deeper understanding of the subject matter through engagement with diverse perspectives and viewpoints.

Learning Outcomes:

1. Develop advanced critical thinking skills through in-depth analysis and discussions in seminars and group settings.
2. Enhance independent research abilities by synthesizing information from diverse sources.
3. Improve oral communication skills with structured presentations and interactive discussions.
4. Foster effective teamwork and collaborative learning through peer feedback and group activities.
5. Deepen understanding of subjects by engaging with diverse perspectives.
6. Refine research skills by formulating clear research proposals and conducting comprehensive literature reviews.
7. Engage in critical analysis and debates, exploring varied viewpoints.
8. Reflect on personal learning journeys and synthesize key insights gained throughout the course.
9. Produce high-quality final projects integrating research and analysis, and present findings professionally.

Course Structure:

1. Introduction to Seminar Methodology

- Overview of seminar-based learning.
- Guidelines for effective presentations and discussions.
- Introduction to research methodologies and resources.

2. Topic Selection and Proposal

- Students choose a topic within the course's scope.
- Develop a research proposal outlining objectives, methodology, and expected outcomes.

3. Literature Review and Research

- Conduct a comprehensive literature review related to the chosen topic.
- Gather data, analyze findings, and develop arguments based on research.

4. Presentation Skills Workshop

- Techniques for structuring presentations.
- Practice sessions for effective delivery, including visual aids and engaging content.

5. Seminar Presentations (Individual or Group)

- Each student/group presents their research findings.
- Peer feedback and discussions following each presentation.

6. Critical Analysis and Discussion

- Engage in critical analysis of presented topics.
- Encourage debates, discussions, and exploration of differing perspectives.

7. Reflection and Synthesis

- Reflect on the seminar experience and personal learning journey.
- Synthesize key takeaways and insights gained throughout the course.

8. Final Project or Paper

- Culminating project/paper integrating research, analysis, and discussions from the course.
- Presentation of final project findings to the class.

Steps of Evaluation:

1. Group discussion will be held within each group under the chairmanship of Head of the Department at the department level.
2. The presentation and the report submitted by the students will be evaluated by one external member and one internal member.

External Member will be appointed by the Head of the Department from the following:

Course Title: Research Courses

This course will have two parts. In the first part, students will take a course on Research Methodology worth 4 credits, which will be an integral component of Research Courses. Like the rest of the other courses, it will carry full marks of 100 with a similar pattern of internal and end-semester examinations.

Syllabus of the Course on Research Methodology

Course Code: RM

Full Marks: 100

Credits: 4 Credits

Course Objectives:

The Course aims to help the learners to strive towards the following goals –

1. Understand the meaning, importance, and characteristics of scientific social research.
2. Identify different types of social research and their applications.
3. Learn how to formulate research problems and develop hypotheses in social sciences.
4. Familiarize with tools and techniques of data collection such as observation, questionnaires, interviews, and schedules.
5. Gain knowledge of various research methods and research design principles.

Learning Outcomes:

Following will be the learning outcomes of this course –

1. Define scientific social research and describe its key characteristics and significance.
2. Differentiate between types of social research and apply appropriate methods for specific research objectives.
3. Formulate research problems effectively and develop clear and testable hypotheses.
4. Demonstrate proficiency in using data collection tools and techniques like observation, questionnaires, interviews, and schedules.

5. Apply different research methods and design principles to conduct rigorous and valid social research studies.

Course Content:

Unit I: (a) Meaning & Importance of Scientific Social Research, Characteristics of Social Research

(b) Types of Social Research

Unit II: (a) Problem formulation in Social Sciences

(b) Hypothesis: concept and types

Unit III: Tools & techniques of data collection: Observation, Questionnaire, Interviews, Schedule

Unit IV: (a) Research Methods

(b) Research Design

Unit V: Types of Sampling (Simple Random Sampling, Stratified Random Sampling, Purposive Sampling), significance and limitations.

Suggested Readings:

Course Title: Research Courses (Second Part)

In this part, students will have to prepare a project synopsis. Upon approval of the project synopsis by the Research Council, they will be required to write a project thesis based on the submitted topic. This will be followed by a Viva-voce.

The evaluation criteria for the second part of the Research Courses project dissertation are as follows:

- Motivation for the choice of the topic
- Project dissertation design
- Methodology and content depth
- Results and discussion
- Future scope and references
- Participation in an internship program with a reputed organization
- Application of research techniques in data collection
- Report presentation
- Presentation style

The broad guidelines for distributing marks are as follows:

1. Assessment of Project Synopsis: 75 marks
 2. Assessment of Project Thesis: 100 marks
 3. Viva-voce: 25 marks

Students who do not opt for the 12-credit Research Course listed above will study the following Advanced Major Courses, each worth 4 credits. The syllabus and other details can be found below.
